01.03.2023	(Self-)organisation in studies	Being well organized is already half the rent as Germans would say: Good (self-)organisation is important for successful and stress-free studies. In this week's learning café, we'll exchange tips and strategies to start the semester in a better organised way.
08.03.2023	Stress management	The next deadline is approaching, next week there's another presentation and the exam period is just around the corner: studying can sometimes be quite stressful. A little stress management can help from time to time. This week in the Learning Café, we'll be talking to you about strategies to get away from the stress a little. We are especially looking forward to a great exchange - because everyone has a different promising technique that others may not know about yet!
15.03.2023	Info Event Outgoing for Sociology and Political Science	Are you planning to spend one or two semesters at a partner university abroad? In this regard, there are still some important questions to be clarified, especially regarding the choice of

		courses, the preparation of the learning agreement and the crediting of courses in general. For this reason, all questions about a semester abroad will be answered this week by the program managers Stefanie Thye and Florian Dorner.
22.03.2023	How do I read papers in such a way that I remember what I read?	Sometimes you get the feeling that you can't see the forest for the papers...er...trees. Every week you read many different articles on different topics and sometimes you've already forgotten everything. Sound familiar? There are a few reading techniques that can change that!
